SENSE AND SENSIBILITY AND SEA MONSTERS

BY JANE AUSTEN AND BEN H. WINTERS

PRAISE FOR QUIRK CLASSIC #1

Pride and Prejudice and Zombies

By Jane Austen and Seth Grahame-Smith

"A delectable literary mash-up . . . might we hope for a sequel?
Grade A-."

—Lisa Schwarzbaum of Entertainment Weekly

"Jane Austen isn't for everyone. Neither are zombies. But combine the two and the only question is, Why didn't anyone think of this before? The judicious addition of flesh-eating undead to this otherwise faithful reworking is just what Austen's gem needed."

—Wired

"Has there ever been a work of literature that couldn't be improved by adding zombies?"

—Lev Grossman, Time

"Such is the accomplishment of Pride And Prejudice And Zombies that after reveling in its timeless intrigue, it's difficult to remember how Austen's novel got along without the undead. What begins as a gimmick ends with renewed appreciation of the indomitable appeal of Austen's language, characters, and situations. Grade A."

LIST OF ILLUSTRATIONS

As his weeping relations watched, astonished, the dying man clutched a bit of flotsam in his remaining hand and scrawled a message in the muddy shore. page 10

Mrs. Dashwood grasped a spare oar from its rigging, snapped it in twain upon her knee, and plunged the sharp, broken point into the gleaming, deep-set eye of the beast. page 30

Colonel Brandon, the friend of Sir John, suffered from a cruel affliction, the likes of which the Dashwood sisters had heard of, but never seen firsthand. page 38

As the party watched in stunned horror, Miss Bellwether was wrapped inside the quivering blanket-shape of the beast and consumed. page 63

Edward sought to grapple with the rear quarters of the great fish whilst it opened its massive wet maw around Mrs. Dashwood's head. page 104

This fearsome, two-headed beast had been thriving in this dank weather, expanding its bulk, awaiting its chance to strike. page 126

The Dome itself, the greatest engineering triumph of human history since the Roman aqueducts, had been constructed over a decade and a half. page 147

The guests began a screaming stampede for the exit, shoving and fighting past one another to get out of the path of the death-lobsters. page 169

Marianne strolled with Willoughby along the beach, and Monsieur Pierre hopped happily alongside them.

page 200

At present her only concern was the crablike stinging horror that had crawled inside her helmet and attached one of its fearsome chelicerae directly into her neck.

page 234

The Dome gave way quickly, with sheets of glass tumbling and slicing to the ground, followed by waves of water rushing in from all directions.

page 256

The hero was Colonel Brandon.

page 300

The Leviathan looked this way and that, its gargantuan eyes rolling wildly.

The ceremony took place on the shores of Deadwind Island early in the autumn.
