Dr Andrew Marlow has a perfectly ordered life, full of devotion to his work and the painting hobby he loves. This order is destroyed when renowned artist Robert Oliver attacks a canvas in the National Gallery and becomes his patient.

As Oliver refuses to speak, Marlow's only clue is the beautiful, haunted woman Oliver paints obsessively, day after day. Who is she, and what strange hold does she have over this tormented genius? Desperate to help, Marlow embarks on a journey that leads him into the lives of the women closest to Oliver, and to a dark story at the heart of French Impressionism – a tragedy that ripples out to touch present-day lives.

'An intriguing combination of old-fashioned mystery, historical novel and psychological study' DAILY MAIL

'Resonates and teems with delicious sentences . . . dazzling' FINANCIAL TIMES

'An intriguing detective story that kept me guessing from start to finish... Kostova writes with rare sensitivity'
